TO VOL. IV, P. 273.

WHILE appreciating the notice of my work on the 'Origin of the Third Personal Pronoun הוּא' which appeared in this REVIEW (vol. IV, p. 273), I may be permitted to point out, as the matter is of more than personal interest, that the reviewer has not observed that I adduce evidence that the root was הו not הוּא as he makes me say. That he does so is somewhat surprising, as the whole essay expressly connects the Semitic-Indo-European languages at the biliteral stage. This mistake would prevent those who are able and willing from following up my work.
